Bids Have Gone Out for New Firehouse After a Year's Delay for State Approval

Bids have gone out for the new firehouse on Witherspoon Street and are due back next week. A bid could be awarded at the end of September, one year after Township Committee and Borough Council met in joint session to go over the architect's final plans and cost estimates.

At the time it was estimated that the firehouse could be completed by November 30, 1990, if it were to be bid before final approval of construction documents were received from the State Department of Community Affairs (DCA), or by January, 1991, if the more prudent approach was taken of waiting to go out to bid after final approval. It was hoped that DCA approval would be forthcoming by last February and construction begun by mid-March.

According to Borough Councilman and Fire Commissioner Mark Freda, the delay has been in trying to satisfy DCA and resolve differences between the state and the architects Fulmer & Wolfe over interpretation of code requirements. "There were a lot of problems, and it took a lot of explaining," Mr. Freda says. But he adds that he feels very different about the firehouse now that bids have gone out than he did a year ago when he and the rest of the Fire Department weren't sure whether the project would ever get started.

A municipality can't accept bids unless the money is available to pay for it, so Township Committee took the next step in introducing an ordinance appropriating $1,280,000 in bonds for its share of the $2 million project. Borough Council had taken this step earlier by appropriating $720,000 toward the cost.

An agreement is being formalized between the two municipalities setting forth how the cost and responsibilities for the firehouse will be shared, and how the municipalities will be reimbursed when the Chambers Street Firehouse is sold to defray the cost of construction. This agreement will be based on letters between Township Mayor Kate Litvack and Mr. Freda and a memorandum of understanding between the two municipal administrators.

According to this correspondence, up to $1.3 million of the proceeds of the sale of the Chambers Street firehouse would go to pay the cost of constructing the new firehouse. The $1.3 million figure was the architect's estimate at

Nassau Street Building to Be Cited For Life-Threating Fire Violations

Members of the Borough Rent Registration Board were expected to ask Borough Council to take immediate action to remedy life-threatening conditions at 203-205 Nassau Street, a house containing seven residences owned by Princeton landlord Sanford Zeitler.

At the meeting scheduled for Tuesday, August 14, Board Member David Goldfarb was expected to cite the building's fire code violations. These, along with structural defects, dilapidation and general disrepair, led the Health Department's housing inspector Rocky Innocenzi, in a July 17 memo to Council President Marvin Reed and Borough Administrator Mark Gordon, to recommend the evacuation and closing of the building's second and third floor "as soon as possible."

According to Mr. Goldfarb, the building was first cited by Borough Fire Official Bill Majewski for violations of a life safety condition on November 17, 1986. These violations included inadequate egress and an unprotected interior exit stairway.

At Mr. Majewski's most recent visit, on February 13 of this year, these conditions had not been remedied, according to Mr. Goldfarb, who added that Mr. Majewski had also found combustibles stored in the basement, electrical wiring hanging loose on the first floor, a lack of emergency lighting, and carpeting and wall paneling that did not meet flammability standards.

The Rent Registration Board was expected to take issue with the fact that fines were never levied against the owner. According to Mr. Goldfarb, the State provides for fines of up to $5,000 per day for each day during which a violation remains unabated after the date fixed in a Notice of Violation for the correction of the violation.

Township Fall Clean-Up Limited to Sticks & Limbs

There will be a municipally-funded fall clean-up in the Township this autumn, but it will be limited to tree limbs and branches.

That's the good news. For a time it looked as if there would be no fall clean-up at all, because the Township had to spend $14,000 more than the entire amount budgeted for disposal of both 1990 spring and fall clean-up on the spring clean-up alone when an unusually large volume of unwanted items (inorganic as well as organic) was put out for disposal. Township Engineer Robert V. Kiser and members of Township Committee suspect that residents of communities that do not have this municipal service may have contributed to the volume by leaving their unwanted items by the side of Township roads during clean-up time.

Faulty Work Causes Delays in Completing Road Reconstruction

Faulty work has caused delays in the completion of the reconstruction of Cherry Hill Road as well as Quaker Road between Mercer Road and Route 206.

Reporting to Township Committee on Monday night, Township Engineer Robert V. Kiser said that in the case of Cherry Hill Road, it was a matter of curbing not installed to the proper grade or elevation. Some 300 to 400 feet of curb has had to be removed and replaced.

The general contractor for the Cherry Hill Road reconstruction is Davies Bros., but the curbing was the responsibility of a subcontractor, Mr. Kiser says. He told Committee that final paving is due this week.

Quaker Road was supposed to have been completed two weeks ago, but the elevation of the roadwork in some places was not satisfactory. The contractor, Longo Construction, was asked to recheck all the elevations and come back with a plan for making corrections. The plan involves a slight revision in the

Firehouse

the time of what the new firehouse would cost.

Any proceeds above $1.3 million would be placed in a fund to finance future capital needs of the Fire Department, with the understanding that the funds would be jointly shared on a rateable basis. It is also understood that should the cost of the new firehouse exceed the proceeds of the sale of the Chambers Street firehouse, these costs would be shared on a rateable basis.

Construction cost has been estimated at $1.4 to $1.6 million, depending on what options are included, with "soft costs" bringing the total to $2 million. Allowing a month to look over the bids and to award a contract, plus another month for the contractor to be ready to be at the site, Mr. Freda thinks it is "very iffy" as to whether the contractor would get the foundations in this fall. "It might be next spring," he says.

"But personally I am glad to see it at this stage where its own momentum will carry it along. A year ago we were still anxious as to whether it would occur."

Parking Problems

Talk of bids and construction timetables raises a new and thorny problem — parking — for construction workers, municipal employees, and school board employees working in the Valley Road building. The Valley Road building parking lot is the site for the firehouse, and all parking there now will have to go someplace else.

The school buses, the municipal and Board of Education employees who park behind the Valley Road building will also have to park elsewhere until construction is advanced enough to allow passage between the building and the new firehouse that is part of the plan. During the non-swimming season, the Community Park pool parking lot will accommodate 30 construction workers, 60 Township employees, 40 school board personnel and about 20 Community Park School teachers, plus a few visitors.

Township Assistant Administrator Lynn Evers suggests a tag or decal system to help police enforce these priorities in this lot during the winter months. Sgt. David Cromwell told Township Committee Monday night, "I foresee major problems. It's going to be difficult for people who volunteer for Township boards to give their time and then be hit with a ticket."

The problem will get much worse in the summer months, when the Community Park pool lot has to be given over entirely to swimmers. Recreation Director Donald Barr told Committee, "I see real problems developing come June 15." "Everybody is going to suffer," Mayor Litvack agreed. "People are going to be put out quite a bit."

Although an ordinance had been prepared regulating the use of the Community Park pool lot during the construction time, it was not introduced on Monday night to give Committee additional time to work out the difficulties.

Clean-Up

Mr. Kiser gave Committee a more detailed accounting of that clean-up, which cost taxpayers $41,000 in labor, $12,000 in overtime, $74,000 in the tipping fee paid for disposal of 718 tons of material at $103 a ton, and $4,700 for the rental of two trucks to help finish the job. That comes to $132,000, and with gas and wear and tear on vehicles probably amounted to $150,000 in round numbers, Mr. Kiser told Committee.

Having budgeted $60,000 for the tipping fee for both clean-ups for 1990, Township Committee was not sure a fall clean-up would be possible this year. Mayor Kate Litvack asked the engineer for his thoughts, and Mr. Kiser recommended returning to a pick-up of only organic materials, as was done several years ago. Based on the volume of organic material this past spring, he estimated picking up tree branches only would cost the Township $15,450, and that picking up other garden debris as well would double the volume and double the cost to $30,900.

Mr. Kiser also recommended that Committee enact fines or penalties for property owners who do not comply with Township clean-up regulations — such as putting out the wrong type of material or putting out material after clean-up is completed. Committee did not discuss his recommendations, which included having the Township remove the material and then assessing the property owner, and if that does not produce payment, placing a lien on the property for the fine that has been incurred or the cost of removal.

There was discussion of "other garden debris," which does not include regular Township-wide curbside leaf pick-up. This year Township residents were asked not to put garden debris in plastic bags but to place it at the curb to be picked up by a special machine. However, garden debris got tossed on top of sticks and branches, making it difficult to separate out the sticks and branches for the woodchipper.

So the Public Works Department has decided if garden debris is to be collected it must be in bags, as formerly. But Committeeman Tom Poole objected to biodegradable material being disposed of in a landfill in bags which would not allow it to break down. Committee decided that to save money and to avoid the bag problem, this year's fall clean-up will be sticks and limbs only.

"People with large backyards should have compost piles for garden debris," Mr. Poole remarked, and Mayor Kate Litvack suggested holding a workshop on how to compost.

Bayard Lane Walkway

In other business, Committee adopted an ordinance appropriating $27,000 for a walkway at the bottom of Bayard Lane, with a guard rail protecting bikers and pedestrians from northbound traffic on Route 206. Henry Frank, 126 Valley Road, a former member of the Traffic Safety Committee, objected to the walkway, claiming that it served no purpose, was not needed and would only encourage people to walk in a dangerous area. He also objected to spending $27,000 for it.

It was pointed out that neighbors had asked for the walkway, and that it had the unanimous endorsement of the Traffic Safety Committee.

Ordinance Establishing Two New Educational Zones Passed by Council after Nine Months of Discussion

Nine months to the day after its first public discussion at a meeting of Borough Council, an ordinance establishing two new Borough educational zones — E-3 and E-4 — was passed by Council. The vote was 4-2, with Lucy Mackenzie, Marvin Reed, Jane Terpstra and Mildred Trotman in favor, and Mark Freda and Roger Martindell opposed.

The ordinance limits and defines development in those portions of Princeton University, Westminster Choir College, and Princeton Theological Seminary that adjoin residential neighborhoods.

Taking center stage throughout the public discussions and private meetings over the past nine months has been the University's Engineering Quadrangle. Residents of Murray Place and nearby streets had fought hard to restrict the nature and scope of the University's development there.

The neighbors' major victory was in making laboratories a conditional use. The University, however, was given permission to construct 340,000 square feet in the Engineering Quadrangle. It has already announced plans for a garage, materials science building, and addition to the engineering building. These total 245,000 square feet.

Setbacks & Screening

The ordinance contains a number of setback and screening requirements aimed at shielding Murray Place houses from the new buildings. But at last week's meeting, Murray Place resident Andrea Stein asked, "How is a 70-foot building going to be screened from houses 35 feet high?"

Ms. Stein asked that the tree heights be made specific in the ordinance. Council President Marvin Reed responded that the trees will be sizeable at the time of planting, "as high as a second-story window."

Mila Gibbons Gardner came forward to distribute a photograph of the University's new computer science building to members of Council. "We remember Palmer Square before it was Palmer Square," said the erect, white-haired woman. "It was built on a vale of tears. I feel very strongly about this because I have long-established ties with the University and my home town, Princeton."

Prefacing his comments by saying there was a very favorable article in the New York Times ten days earlier about the computer science building, University Vice President for Public Affairs Robert Durkee said the University appreciated the opportunity to be part of the discussion of the proposed ordinance from its earliest stages.

"There's no denying it," he noted during his prepared remarks, it [the ordinance] imposes more costs than already exist."

Concern for Access

To Harrison Street resident and volunteer fireman Larry Dupraz' concern about access of emergency vehicles to the new Engineering Quadrangle buildings, Councilman Mark Freda responded that plans for all new projects make their way to the fire chief, and that the board of engineers has a chance to review and comment.

"The ordinance fails to address adequately the parking concerns of that part of the Borough," said Councilman Roger Martindell. "It has not been sufficiently shown that the development allowed would not severely impact the neighborhood."

Councilman Mark Freda said he remained quite concerned

TRENTON ROUNDUP

Auto Insurance Amnesty

A four-month auto insurance amnesty program will begin this fall, announced State Insurance Commissioner Samuel Fortunato. Estimates place the number of uninsured drivers in the State as high as 600,000.

Those drivers, however, who do not take advantage of the amnesty period to become insured will face significantly stricter penalties. These include a possible two-week jail sentence.

The amnesty program will run from October 1 through January 31. The tougher penalties will go into effect when the amnesty deadline expires.

Better Deal for Young Drivers

Under a new rating system proposed by State insurance officials, young, first-time drivers would have to wait three years instead of the current eight to see their auto insurance bills decrease dramatically.

Most young motorists, particularly males, must wait until they are 25 or older before their insurance rates drops. Under the proposed new system, rates for these drivers could begin declining at age 20.

Contact Lense Prescriptions

A bill that would guarantee people who wear contact lenses access to their lens prescriptions has been released by a State Assembly committee.

Under current State law, the dispensing of contact lens prescriptions directly to patients is prohibited. They may be given only to ophthalmologists, optometrists or opticians. Eyeglass prescriptions, on the other hand, may legally be given to patients.

The bill will go before the complete Assembly in the fall with bulk. "There is too much in the area," he said.

"If we adopt the ordinance tonight, I understand there may be fine tuning," said Mr. Reed. He pointed out that the eating club properties were left in the E-2 district, and that it was important that all clubs have a consistent plan for future development and possible transformation.

Mr. Reed added that he would also want to revisit the issue of how the height of buildings is measured. Since Princeton is not as flat as the corn fields of Iowa, the question is whether building height is measured from sea level, from a specific given point, from the ground on which the structure is to be built, or from somewhere else.

The vote was then taken, and the approved ordinance began its legal journey into Borough zoning law.

Other Business

In other business, Council voted to draft an ordinance setting up two new stop signs, and to send the ordinance to the State Department of Transportation for the necessary approval.

The signs would be placed at Armour Road, where it intersects with Campbelton Road, and at the intersection of Morven Place and Boudinot Street.

Council voted 4-2 to refuse permission to Princeton University to place banners on Washington Road announcing each Princeton University football game. The banners would read, "Princeton University Football This Saturday vs ...."

Councilman Mark Freda said a similar banner had remained up during the whole season last year. Councilwoman Mildred Trotman said that banners are usually up only for a one-time event. "This is for so long."

Council voted to appoint the Township's fire official, Theodore K. Cashel, as its interim fire official, effective August 10. It also agreed to meet some time in September with Township Committee to discuss the library's expansion plans.

The Princeton Packet's letter asking Council to reconsider its refusal to permit street hawking of the newspaper came under discussion. Packet Circulation Director Edward M. Kelley said he had checked with legal counsel from the New Jersey Press Association, who indicated that Council's denial would be a violation of the First Amendment.

Council again denied this permission. A review of the matter by the Borough attorney's office said the denial of a license to the Packet was appropriate considering the important safety concerns raised by street hawking at major intersections. It stated that the denial would likely survive a constitutional challenge.

Council moved to cancel its August 28 meeting. It will next meet September 6.

Locked or Unlocked, Bikes Still Disappear

On a year-round basis, there is rarely a letup in the theft of bicycles in Princeton, and owners should be warned, it doesn't seem to make much difference if they are locked or not.

In the Borough, unlocked bikes disappeared off the porches of two John Street homes on August 4 and August 8. One was a Huffy women's model, valued at $130, the other a girls' pink Rallye, valued at $70.

A University student lost a $275 Schwinn mountain bike from the basement of Spelman Hall between August 7 and 8. A master lock was cut.

Another mountain bike, a $300 Murray model, was taken from Williams Street near the Frick Chem Lab between 9 and 10:30 p.m. on August 8. It was unlocked.

A $350 Schwinn men's racing bike had been locked with a cable outside Super Fresh in the Princeton Shopping Center, but it didn't matter. It was stolen in just 15 minutes last Saturday morning.

Locks on two more mountain bikes, valued at $350 and $500 apiece, proved no deterrent. They were stolen sometime between 11 p.m. on August 11 and 10 a.m. August 12 from a rack near Forbes College on Alexander Street.

Addition Is Approved For University Lab

The Planning Board has granted site plan approval to Princeton University for the construction of a 48,000-square foot addition to Moffett Laboratory on Washington Road.

The addition would provide biology laboratory and teaching space in a five level structure (one level below grade) plus penthouse and exhaust stacks. The building will be located parallel to the Lewis Thomas Laboratory, to which it will be connected by an underground tunnel. The additional space is needed to expand programs in the Biology Department and to relieve crowded conditions in the existing building.

Discussion at the Planning Board focused on parking, which is to be provided in the lot just south of the Lewis Thomas building, with five cars in another lot. The University calculated that 48 parking spaces would be needed by the new building. A University survey of the Lewis Thomas lot in April showed that there were an average of 90 to 99 vacant spaces and thus adequate parking capacity to meet the expected demand for 48 new spaces.

Marvin Reed was not convinced that this is so and voted against granting preliminary and final approval. He asked for certification before the board granted final approval.

In other business, the Planning Board voted unanimously to allow The Hun School to build a 9,000-square-foot building for faculty housing. The proposed structure will include four residential units ranging in size from approximately 2160 to 2350 square feet. It will be located in a steeply sloping portion of the campus and required a variance from the steep slopes ordinance which the Planning Board granted.

LAWRENCEVILLE LANDMARK GUTTED BY FIRE: The Jigger Shop, a store made famous by Owen Johnson's, "The Lawrenceville Stories" first published in the "Saturday Evening Post" suffered severe damage in a fire early last Friday morning. The turn-of-the-century building is owned by the Lawrenceville School.

Fire Severely Damages Lawrence's Jigger Shop

The Jigger Shop, on historic Lawrenceville landmark which most recently served as the bookstore of The Lawrenceville School, was severely damaged in a fire early Friday morning.

Chief Kevin Reading of the Lawrenceville Fire Company said the fire was caused by faulty electrical cords which ran to a large refrigeration unit in the shop. The blaze destroyed the contents of the shop, which included textbooks, school supplies, and clothing, and burned into an unoccupied apartment on the second floor.

Lawrenceville School officials hope the building can be restored, said Mary Lee Jamieson, director of community relations, but were still waiting for a report from the Lawrence Township building inspector on the extent of the damage. Although owned by the school, the shop had been leased to the Princeton University Store, which operated it.

According to Ms. Jamieson, the shop got its name from the jigger — a unit of measure used in the soda fountain once contained in the store. For many years, beginning about the turn of the century, the fountain was a favorite hangout for Lawrenceville students.

Textbooks needed for fall classes at the school are being ordered by the Princeton University Store, said Ms. Jamieson, and a store will be set up in a building on campus.

Several Thefts Reported Last Week in Borough

A variety of items, including clothing, cameras, cassette tapes, license plates and household goods were stolen last week in the Borough.

Apparently someone is starting a collection of car plates, and now has four with 46 to go. Three cars, parked in Princeton Seminary's Speer Library lot on Library Place, had their rear plates stolen between August 5 and 10. The cars were from Massachusetts, Tennessee and Connecticut. A fourth car, with a North Carolina plate, lost it while parked on South Stanworth Lane between August 6 and 7.

A Saab parked in a driveway on Cleveland Lane was entered between 1 and 8 a.m. on Sunday morning. Taken was $5 in cash, and a case containing 60 audio cassettes. There was no sign of forced entry.

A Moore Street house, used as an office, was burglarized sometime between 5:30 p.m. last Thursday and 10 a.m. Monday. A ground level window was pried open and a screen broken to gain entry. Missing are a lamp, Minolta camera with assorted lenses, microwave oven and a coffee pot, with a total value of about $800.

A Nikon camera and lenses were stolen from Princeton University's Guyot Hall, which houses the Geology Department. The value is listed at $800.

Two stores in Palmer Square were hit by shoplifters last week. Talbot's lost four silk blouses and two skirts, valued at $360, last Thursday afternoon around 3:15. The suspect is described as a black female, about 25, with a slim build, about 5'8, wearing dungaree shorts and a T-shirt.

The Coach Store reported the loss of a wallet and appointment diary, taken between 2 and 3:30 the afternoon of August 4. Their value is listed as $250.

In one other Borough incident, a 47-year-old Princeton resident was the victim of an assault on Nassau Street around 11 Saturday night. He was walking between Palmer Square and Witherspoon Street when he was punched three times on the side of the head by a black male, wearing a green Army shirt and blue pants. There was apparently no provocation for the attack.

Drug Charges Lodged Against Somerset Man

Responding to a call about a disturbance at a Griggs Drive residence in Griggs Farm, Township police found a Somerset Man in need of medical attention.

Later, after Mario A. Smith, 27, had been treated at the Princeton Medical Center and released, he was charged with possession of a controlled dangerous substance (CDS), thought to be cocaine, and marijuana, and with being under the influence of a CDS. He was released after paying 10 percent of $5,000 bail, and is scheduled to appear in court on September 5.

———

A suspect in an act of open lewdness is still at large. A 31-year-old women walking between Hibben and Magie apartments around 12:30 a.m. Monday walked by a man going in the other direction. He called to her, and when she turned around, he unzipped his fly, and exposed himself.

The man was described as white, about 30 years old, 5'10, dark brown hair, wearing dark pants and a white long-sleeve shirt. The incident was not reported to Township police until 4:30 a.m.

Three Found Guilty Of Drunken Driving

Three people were found guilty of drunken driving in Borough Court Monday, August 6.

Ronald J. Krystyniak was fined $415 and his driver's license revoked for six months; and John Shepard and William Gutbrodt were both fined $375 and had their licenses revoked for six months.

Yuan Chu was fined $75 for careless driving, Josephine Rosso paid $115 for the same infraction, Richard Kotkin was fined $75 for a stop sign violation, Maurice Sasson was fined $60 for passing on the right, and Eileen O'Neill paid $60 for speeding.

In criminal court, Glen H. Haggan, 66 Burnt Hill Road, Skillman, and David S. Haggan, 86 Devonshire Drive, Somerville, each paid fines of $105 for trespassing. Two other persons failed to show in court to answer charges of trespassing and a bench warrant was issued for their arrest. They are Thomas Roicee, 49 Albermarle Road, Lawrenceville, and Shawn A. Hyter, 13 Quarry Street.

Two Homes Are Entered Saturday on Kingston Rd.

Two Township homes on Princeton-Kingston Road were the target of burglary attempts last Saturday night.

In the first, a ground floor window was smashed at 9:20 p.m. and the house entered. One bedroom was checked, but nothing taken. The person responsible managed to get in and out quickly, because police, alerted by an alarm system, arrived a few minutes later.

The same night, between 6 and 11 p.m., another house in the neighborhood was entered when a screen window was forced open. A purse containing a wallet with $110 in cash was taken. The purse and wallet were found the next day in an adjoining yard, minus the money.

One other theft last week involved carpenter's tools taken from a van parked in a lot by Poe Hall, on The Hun School campus. The value of the tools is $400.

Two Cars Are Involved In Bruere's Hill Crash

A two-car accident at 5:45 last Friday afternoon at the top of Bruere's Hill on Princeton-Lawrenceville Road injured one person and created lengthy traffic delays for other motorists.

William H. Thiel, 53, of 116 Nassau Drive, Lawrenceville, was traveling up the hill in the left of the two lanes, when Blake T. Carr, 17, of 914 Lawrenceville Road, traveling in the right lane, attempted to pass near the top of the hill where the two lanes merge into one.

Mr. Carr lost control of the 1988 Toyota he was driving and hit the right front of Mr. Thiel's 1989 Buick. Both cars careened across the road to the shoulder on the other side. Mr. Thiel managed to stop his vehicle, but Mr. Carr's Toyota continued into a fence, striking a concrete post, and flipped over on the passenger side.

Carlos Alegria, riding with Mr. Carr, was slightly injured in the accident, and transported to Princeton Medical Center where he was treated and released. Mr. Carr was issued a summons for careless driving and operating a vehicle with hazardous tire conditions.

World Churches Alliance Taps Seminary Professor

Dr. Jane Dempsey Douglass, Hazel Thompson McCord Professor of Historical Theology at Princeton Theological Seminary, was elected president of the World Alliance of Reformed Churches Monday in Geneva, Switzerland. She is the first woman ever elected president of a worldwide communion of churches.

Dr. Douglass was elected by the executive committee of the World Alliance to replace the Rev. Allen Boesak of South Africa, who resigned as president on Friday. The World Alliance of Reformed Churches is the oldest worldwide organization of churches and includes 157 member denominations of the Reformed tradition in more than 82 countries.

Dr. Douglass, an ordained elder in the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.), joined the Princeton Seminary faculty in 1985. She has been active in the World Alliance since 1979, when she was elected a member of the Alliance's Caribbean and North American Area Council. She has served as co-chair of the Lutheran-Reformed Dialogue in North America and has represented the World Alliance in its dialogue with the Lutheran World Federation.

Recently, she was vice-chair of a special committee of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) to write a Brief Statement of Reformed Faith, which was adopted by the General Assembly of that denomination in June. The statement was written to be a contemporary statement of what Presbyterians believe.

Registration Under Way For YWCA Fall Classes

Registration is under way for the fall session at the YWCA. Programs begin September 10 and run throughout the season. The YW offers over 250 programs and special events including adult interests, fitness, dance, aquatics, gymnastics, and enrichment for young people.

Adult interests range from career-oriented programs to leisure time activities. Some new offerings include a series on parenting, a private adoption seminar, and weight consciousness. Computer training courses will again be offered, including a new "Executive Briefing" designed for managers of computer users.

Support groups for adult children of alcoholics, the disabled, PMS sufferers, and care givers all have meetings beginning in September. The Breast Cancer Resource Center now has three groups; a women's facilitated discussion group, a guest speaker series, and a men's discussion group.

The English as a Second Language (ESL) department has received an Adult Basic Education grant to offer free English instruction to those recently entering this country with little or no knowledge of the language. Special in-person registration on Tuesday, September 4, from 6 to 9 p.m. is required for this funded program.

Foreign language instruction in French, Spanish, Japanese, Russian, and Chinese are offered, as well as small group ESL instruction with five levels of instruction from beginning English to advanced conversation. Other English courses are TOEFL (English Testing) preparation and free tutoring.

Leisure time activities are designed for those who enjoy reading, playing bridge and chess, music, writing, decorating and image consulting. Cooking classes include a variety of holiday programs, with an emphasis on healthful and gourmet cooking.

The Artisans Guild offers numerous handcraft and art courses, including a special event for quilters featuring Sonya Lee Barrington, who will lead two workshops September 29 and 30 in "Curved Seam Piecing" and "Tessellations" (mosaic patterning). An introduction to photography, plus many holiday craft courses are new for fall.

"Step on It!" is a new YW program which uses steps with aerobic exercise to burn fat. There are also "Body Sync" fitness classes ranging from non-aerobic muscle-toning to high impact aerobics. A specialty course, "L.A.F.F. (Life After Forty-Five)," provides relief from stress and a chance to explore inner creativity. Gymnastics and Akido for adults are other options. Dance for adults and teens includes ballet, jazz/modern, tap, and Spanish dance.

The Waterbabies program continues to be one of the most popular swim programs offered at the YW. Other aquatics for adults include swim instruction, water aerobics, rehabilita-

Bicycle Tour Map from DOT

The New Jersey Department of Transportation has issued the latest in the Department's series of bicycle tour maps.

The "D&R Canal Tow Path Ride" is the ninth tour map developed for recreational touring by the Department's bicycle and pedestrian advocate William Feldman.

The other available tour maps are "Last Covered Bridge" in the Ringoes-Princeton area; "Three Easy Scenic River Rides," along the D&R Canal in Somerset County, from Batsto to Bass River in Burlington County and through the Lamington River Valley in Hunterdon and Somerset Counties; "Battle of Monmouth" near Freehold; "Great Swamp" in Morris and Somerset Counties; "Round Valley Roundabout" in Hunterdon County; "Old Mine Road" in the Delaware Water Gap National Recreational Area; "Allamuchy Allegory" in Warren and Sussex Counties; and "Pine Barrens River Ramble" in Burlington County.

Each map offers a brief description of the origins of the route and its terrain, a narrative route description including problem areas unique to the route and tips for safe, enjoyable biking.

A variety of related bicycle information is also available including a list of cycling events in New Jersey and a recently updated bicycling information handbook.

For copies of the tour guides or handbooks, call Mr. Feldman at 530-8062 or write to him at NJDOT, 1035 Parkway Avenue, CN600, Trenton 08625

First Director Is Named For Human Values Center

Professor of Politics Amy Gutmann will become the first director of the Princeton University Center for Human Values, effective immediately.

Ms. Gutmann has been Andrew W. Mellon Professor of Politics and director of the Program in Political Philosophy. She joined the Princeton faculty after earning her Ph.D. from Harvard in 1976. Her teaching and research bring philosophy to bear on practical problems and bridge the gap between the work of historians of political thought and analytic philosophers. She is author of Liberal Equality (1980), along with numerous articles in philosophy and public affairs. Her most recent book, Democratic Education (1987) explores the central problems of education in a pluralistic society and suggests principled ways of resolving those problems.

In June, Princeton announced a $21 million gift from Laurance S. Rockefeller, an emeritus trustee and a member of its Class of 1932, to establish

Area Poets Will Appear In Dodge Poetry Festival

Two Princeton residents, Joyce Carol Oates and Alicia Ostriker, will be among 18 nationally and internationally renowned poets to participate in the upcoming Geraldine R. Dodge Poetry Festival, which will feature many of the major poets of our time.

The group includes two former poet laureates of the United States, and winners of five Pulitzer Prizes, eight National Endowment for the Arts Fellowships, five Guggenheim Fellowships, four American Book Awards, and three National Book Awards. They include Jimmy Santiago Baca, Coleman Barks, Cyrus Cassells, Lucille Clifton, Bei Dao, Duoduo, Joy Harjo, Carolyn Kizer, Maxine Kumin, Li-Young Lee, Philip Levine, Howard Nemerov, Naomi Shihab Nye, Quincy Troupe, Cecilia Vicuna, and Richard Wilbur.

Joyce Carol Oates

Alicia Ostriker

Also, Julie Agoos, who teaches in the creative writing program at Princeton University, is among 50 regional and New Jersey poets who have been invited to participate.

The festival will be held September 13, 14, and 15 at Waterloo Village, Stanhope. It will celebrate the oral tradition with readings, discussions, storytelling and music.

Ms. Oates, the Roger S. Berlind Distinguished Professor in the Humanities at Princeton University, has received awards from the Guggenheim Foundation, the National Institute of Arts and Letters, and the Lotus Club. She is the author of 20 novels and many volumes of short stories, poems, essay and plays.

Ms. Ostriker is the author of seven volumes of poetry, including The Imaginary Lover, which won the 1986 William Carlos Williams Prize from the Poetry Society of America. The recipient of grants from the National Endowment for the Arts, the Rockefeller Foundation, the Guggenheim Foundation, and the New Jersey State Council on the Arts, she is a professor of English at Rutgers University.

The biennial poetry festival is the most public element of the Dodge Foundation's ongoing poetry program, which was initiated in 1986 by Dodge Foundation Executive Director Scott McVay, a Princeton resident, "to bring poetry back to the center of people's lives, to reclaim poetry and thereby reclaim the integrity of the senses and of the imagination."

Festival events will occur throughout Waterloo Village from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. on Thursday and Friday, September 13 and 14, and from 8 a.m. to 10 p.m. on Saturday, September 15. Tickets are $6 for any evening, and $12 for a complete day. Discounts are available for students and senior citizens and for those attending more than one day.

From the Governor's Desk

by Jim Florio

I remember when I bought my first home. It cost $9600. At the time -- this was the early 1960's -- I was working my way through law school in Camden. But even so I was able to afford the down payment and mortgage.

Like many of you, or perhaps your parents and grandparents, one of the things that drew me to New Jersey, in my case from Brooklyn, was this chance to own my home. In other words, an opportunity to realize the American dream.

New Jersey has long been a magnet to those pursuing this dream. But today, because of the crushing burden of property taxes and the high cost of housing, for too many people that dream has become a nightmare. And we're left to wonder: Will our children and grandchildren enjoy the same opportunities we've had?

If we continue on with the status quo and do nothing, the answer to that question will be a resounding and disappointing, No. And that's a shame, not only because young people deserve a chance to own their own homes, but because home ownership is an integral part of our neighborhoods and communities.

I only have to compare my own story to that of a young couple I read about in the newspaper. The couple got the money for a down payment from their parents who had to re-mortgage their home. Too many young couples aren't so fortunate.

There are some things we can do to make home ownership more than an impossible dream. One step we must take is to ease the property tax burden on middle-income people. I plan to do that by increasing next year's property tax rebate to its highest level ever, $500 for some people. We'll get the money to pay for this rebate by increasing the income tax on New Jersey's wealthiest residents. That's the fair thing to do. It's time a family struggling on $50,000 a year stopped paying the same income tax rate as a millionaire.

Property tax relief will do much to preserve neighborhoods and protect seniors from being driven from communities they helped build. But we need to do more if we hope to increase the number of young people who join the ranks of home owners.

Today's average New Jersey home costs $185,000, more than 20 times what I paid. I know few young people who can scrape together the down payment, let along mortgage payments, for such a home. We need to help these young people get over this initial hurdle.

To that end I'm supporting a proposal to help first time home buyers: a $135 million bond issue. The largest chunk of the money, $60 million, will be available as low-interest loans to help first-time home buyers meet down payments and closing costs. Other money will be used to increase the supply of affordable rental housing and to provide senior citizen housing.

The idea, which is the brainchild of Assemblyman David Schwartz, is an excellent one. Not only will it help us build up our communities, but it will provide an economic shot in the arm to the building industry -- one of New Jersey's largest employers -- at a time that it badly needs help.

The nonpartisan Office of Legislative Services estimates that this bond issue will generate $2 billion in economic activity. That's important because it means the bond issue will pose no extra cost to taxpayers. Between the extra revenue that come in from additional economic activity, and the repayment of the loans by the first-time home buyers, we may even come out ahead.

All of us are feeling frustrated and squeezed by the current national economic slow down. It's scary to listen to economists making predictions about recession and to read newspaper articles about record numbers of foreclosures forcing families out of their homes.

We shouldn't be paralyzed by this fear. The worst possible approach is to continue following the status quo that created this mess.

There are steps we can take to see our way through these tough times and preserve our future and our children's future. Cutting the budget and getting rid of the deficit was one such step. It preserved our triple-A credit rating, which will make bonds such as this one cheaper, while other states are seeing their ratings fall. Approving the first-time home buyers bond issue will also do much to continue to make New Jersey a state of opportunity.

I urge you to vote 'yes' on the referendum for the First Time Home Buyers Bond issue.

design of the roadway, according to Mr. Kiser.

Some of the blacktop will have to be removed and also some of the curbing is to be removed and replaced. Mr. Kiser says he hopes the work will be completed by Labor Day.

Meanwhile, Mercer County's replacement of the Alexander Street bridge is on schedule, and the bridge may be reopened to traffic on Wednesday, August 22, depending on the results of concrete tests. When the concrete deck is poured, samples are placed in cylinders and sent to a laboratory for compression testing, Mr. Kiser explains. Concrete gains in strength over time, and if it can meet a minimum pounds-per-square inch pressure test, it is safe for vehicular traffic.

If the Alexander Street bridge is not open August 22, it will be sometime that week, he says.

Bids Out for Mercer Road

With the Cherry Hill Road and Quaker Road projects finishing up, Mr. Kiser is turning his attention to Mercer Road. Bids have gone out for this project which involves reconstruction of Mercer Road from Lovers Lane to the Stony Brook bridge.

A new storm drain will be installed for the entire length. The roadway will be milled and a new bituminous and asphalt surface installed the entire length. In addition, much of the bike path on the north side of the road will be replaced, because there will be a slight change in grade.

The project also involves the installation of a new pull-off area by the Princeton Battlefield State Park. The pull-off would be of bituminous with oil and chip overlay, a more stable base than the gravel that is there now, but in keeping with the less formal look.

Mr. Kiser says that Township traffic counts indicate that up to 20,000 vehicles use Mercer Road a day, with the biggest volume occurring during the morning and evening rush hour. Mindful of this, he has structured the bidding documents in two ways. One is a base bid, calling for the work to be completed in 180 days (six months) and allowing the contractor to close the road to traffic completely between 9 a.m. and 4 p.m.

Before 9 and after 4, the base bid calls for two lanes of travel unimpeded. The advantage to the public is a limit in road closure and the ability for commuter traffic to get through in the morning and back out again in the evening. The disadvantage for the contractor is having to make temporary repairs to the portion he is working on, only to have to undo that work the next day. This involves additional cost, Mr. Kiser points out.

The alternate bid is turning the road over to the contractor completely for whatever length of time he thinks he can get the job done. This would mean a reduction in the number of days the road is out of service and also in the cost. The bidding documents also include an alternate for the extension of the bike path from Parkside Drive to Quaker Road, a project Township Committee may want to consider undertaking depending on how the bid comes in.

Bids are due by August 30, and Mr. Kiser expects Committee will award a contract before September 22. Work would begin in October. The "official" detour while Mercer Road is under construction would be Route 206, but as Mr. Kiser notes, traffic is likely to look for the best alternative — Rosedale Road or Route 1 are roughly parallel to Mercer Road, with Alexander Street and Quaker Road expected to be the heavily traveled connecting links.

Computer Imaging Equipment Revolutionizing Orthodontics; Patients See Their Future Smiles at Two Princeton Practices

Two Princeton orthodontist practices are the first in New Jersey to install computerized imaging equipment that does away with multiple head X-rays for diagnosis and checking progress of treatment. The sophisticated machinery also helps parents decide whether to go ahead with orthodontic treatment by showing them what their child's smile and profile will look like after the braces and rubber bands come off.

Called a DigiGraph Work Station, the machine combines video, computer, and sound wave technology in a diagnostic tool that is much more efficient for the dentist and much more understandable for the patient. The two orthodontic practices that have installed the equipment are the offices of Kevin T. Coyle DMD and Louis J. Russo DDS in Princeton Professional Park, Ewing Street, and that of Brown H. Elmes DDS and Quentin E. Lyle DDS, 22 Chambers Street.

STATE OF THE ART: Dr. Brown Elmes gets ready to "digitalize" his orthodontic assistant Roberta Storaci to demonstrate the wonders of the new computerized imaging machine his office has recently installed.

The primary purpose of the machine is to take measurements of the jaws and their relations to each other and to the rest of the head before orthodontic treatment can begin. As set up in Dr. Elmes and Dr. Lyle's office, the equipment consists of an IBM computer with a large screen and a smaller monitor, two separate printers, two video cameras and a microphone system. The patient sits in an ordinary dentist's chair, head held still in transparent plastic devices, while the video cameras take pictures of the face front and side view and with mouth open and closed.

The image is sent to the computer and is frozen on the screen while the dentist or a technician uses a light pen or probe to touch certain key points on the face. The four overhead microphones measure how long it takes for a sound signal from the probe to reach each microphone. The points then appear as blue dots on the color image of the person's face.

Touch of the Keyboard

At a touch of the keyboard, the computer will connect the dots to show the lines and angles of the face and jaw, providing the necessary measurements. Up to now, these measurements were made by tracing over head X-rays, a much more time-consuming process that would require more than one visit. According to Dr. Elmes, parents are becoming increasingly concerned and knowledgeable about the amount of X-rays their children are exposed to.

As Dr. Russo puts it, "Concern over X-ray exposure is a growing public issue. Because the Digigraph involves sound, not radiation, to create an image, it offers a safe alternative to head films currently used." Because of the ease of operation, the Digigraph is likely to be used not only as a diagnostic tool but also to monitor progress of treatment, eliminating multiple use of X-rays.

A further advantage lies in the fact that although X-rays of skulls are familiar and understandable to the dentist, they are undecipherable and even disconcerting to the patient and family. The Digigraph produces handsome color photographs of the person's face and teeth on an 8 by 10 printout or on four by six cards on which all the necessary information is recorded. Not only does this save space in the dentist's office, but the card can be forwarded to the orthodontist who will be monitoring treatment when the patient is away at school or moves to a different location.

Seeing into the Future

The aspect of the new technology that will probably be most appreciated by parents is the ability of the orthodontist to trace right on the frozen video image where the lips or bottom jaw might be if the teeth are corrected. The concept is similar to the service offered by some hair salons which show clients a video image of themselves digitized on a computer screen before and after hair coloring and styling.

According to Dr. Elmes, the machine will not do away with all head X-rays, because there will be situations, particularly those involving surgery, which require them. Nor will it eliminate making plaster models of the teeth as a preliminary step to treatment. However, the machine will take pictures of the models that become a part of the patient's record on floppy disc and on cards.

According to Dr. Elmes, there are 40 of these Digigraph work stations installed in the country, mainly in university towns like Princeton, with orders for up to 60 or 70 reported by the manufacturer, Dolphin Imaging Systems Inc. of Valencia, Calif. The equipment with options can run $45,000 to $50,000, but to these orthodontists well worth it.

"The system will be very useful in patient consultations," said Dr. Coyle, "It will provide enhanced information in surgical cases and in cases where functional appliances are used, because we can now give our patients an idea of what they will look like after treatment." For Dr. Elmes, there is also an educational benefit to the new equipment. "The more you educate your patients, the more comfortable they are with the treatment," he says.

Plans Are Under Way For the Chili Cook-Off

The Princeton Area Council of Community Services fundraiser, the Second Annual Greater Princeton Chili Cook-Off, will be held Saturday, September 15, from noon to 6 at Princeton Forrestal Village.

In addition to the competition among the participating restaurants for the best chili awards, area human-service agencies will be on hand with exhibits to acquaint the public with their services. A variety of entertainers will brighten the affair, rain or shine.

A country western band known as "Daniel's Country Cooker" will play and sing during much of the afternoon. Radio station WPST disc jockey, John Weber, will serve as master of ceremonies.

Exhibition dancing will be presented by the Shaolin-Kung-Fu Institute, The Masquerade Square Dancers and The Kid Connection, which will also feature solos by professional child singers. More vocal music will be offered by the young adult Gospel Choir of the First Baptist Church of Princeton.

The day will also feature a clown, Rae Roder; face painters from Princeton Creative Theatre; a magician, Steven Luker; and storyteller, Melissa Fearing. The list continues to grow and enthusiasm is in the air.

The Chili Cook-Off is an event for all ages, and will take place indoors and out at Princeton Forrestal Village. For further information call the Council office at 924-5865 or 799-6033.

Philadelphia Outing Planned by Trip Club

The recreation Department's Senior Trip Club will take a trip to Philadelphia on Wednesday, September 12. All ages are invited.

The trip will include a luncheon cruise on The Liberty Bell, a replica of a Mississippi paddle boat that takes passengers on a tour of the Delaware River. After the cruise, the group will visit Pennsbury Manor, the country estate of William Penn.

The 40-acre historic site contains the reconstructed manor house, smokehouse, bake-and-brew house, icehouse, toolhouse, blacksmith shop, stable and horse shelter as well as farm animals and formal English gardens. In the buildings are displayed 17th- and 18th-century artifacts, and guides conduct tours in costumes.

The cost is $35 for Trip Club Members and $38 for non-members. The deadline for registration is Monday. To register, stop by the Recreation Department office, 380 Witherspoon Street, or call 921-9480.

Fall Literature Class Set for Area Seniors

The fall semester of the "Great Books" literature class, sponsored by the Princeton Senior Resource Center, will begin in September. It will be held at the center and will begin Tuesday, September 4. Hours are 1 to 3 p.m. on consecutive Tuesdays, for 16 weeks.

George Ingenbrandt, retired professor at Mercer County Community College, will teach. He will include this semester's selected novels and biographies.

Even though outside reading is not required, the following partial list of books can be read prior to the classes: My Name is Asher Lev, Chaim Potok; Age of Innocence, Edith Wharton; The Immigrant's Daughter, Howard Fast; The Accidental Tourist, Anne Tyler; and Great Expectations, Charles Dickens. Course highlights include films and music. There will be no tests or homework.

The fee is $25. To register, call the Princeton Senior Resource Center at 924-7108.

Caregivers' Support Group Resumes Evening Meetings

The Caregivers' Support Group, sponsored jointly by the Princeton Resource Center and the YWCA, will resume its evening meetings on Tuesday, September 4, at 7:30 p.m. The group will meet the first and third Tuesdays of the month from 7:30 to 9 p.m. at the Senior Resource Center. An annual enrollment fee of $5 will be charged.

Frequent requests for advice and information by people caring for family members prompted the Senior Resource Center to establish this group. It hopes to provide an informal group discussion of the problems and possible solutions to caring for elderly parents or friends.

Harriet Bogdonoff, clinical social worker and psychotherapist, will coordinate the group. She served for five years as a clinical specialist in services to older people and group services with Jewish Family Services of the Delaware Valley, Trenton, and East Windsor. In 1984, she received a post-masters in gerontological practice at Brookdale Institute for the Study of Gerontology.

Persons interested in participating should call the Princeton Senior Resource Center at 924-7108.

YWCA Invites Crafters

The YWCA encourages artisans and crafters to participate in the 17th annual Craftwomen's Marketplace, to be held Saturday and Sunday, November 17 and 18 at John Witherspoon Middle School. This quality show is a juried exhibition and sale to benefit the Pearl Bates Scholarship Fund.

For further information, contact Chairmen Mary Jo Lorimier, 17 Teak Lane, Princeton 08540 or Camille Baldick, 85 Princeton Avenue, Rocky Hill 08553. You can also contact the YWCA, Paul Robeson Place, telephone 497-2100. Applications must be received by August 31.

LITERACY FOR LIFE: William M. Burke, of Princeton, left, is presented with a plaque from Governor James Florio and his wife, Lucinda, at an awards ceremony honoring the ten recipients of the 1990 Governor's Volunteer of the Year Award. Mr. Burke is the founder of the L.I.F.E. (Learning Is For Everyone) program of the New Jersey State Prison, the only full maximum security prison in New Jersey. Borough officials are waiting to receive an up-to-date fire inspection report before attempting to get a court order to close the building, said Council President Marvin Reed late last week.

Since Mr. Majewski's resignation in April, the Borough has sought a new fire official. (Martin Vogt, of the Borough's building department, who is licensed by the State as a fire inspector, had filled in during this period.) An offer was made several weeks ago after the completion of the search process, but the person refused.

In order to move more quickly in this matter, Council last week approved hiring Township Fire Official Theodore K. Cashel as the Borough's interim fire official. Mr. Cashel plans to meet with Borough officials Monday prior to making his inspection of 203-205 Nassau Street.

"Once we get a report, we can take action in any legal way we can against the property," said Assistant Borough Attorney Brian Mulligan. "We need to find out if there exists a legal basis for the building to be shut down and the tenants relocated."

He said Mr. Innocenzi's inspection focused on structural problems, "and these are not sufficient basis for us to close the building."

Mr. Mulligan added that if the fire official confirms serious violations, and if this means closing the building and relocating tenants, the Borough will do so. "We want to be in possession of an air-tight case," he said. "If relocating people is justified, the owner must provide the relocation."

Plans to Renovate

Mr. Zeitler has submitted plans to renovate the building, which contains seven residences, a business, and a retail store. The Borough sent the plans to Professional Plan Examiners for a second look, and on August 1 the firm sent a letter to Mr. Zeitler asking him to correct deficiencies in the plan.

Last year, the building was the target of arsonists. On September 15, 1989, then-Borough Assistant Attorney Robin Johnson wrote Mr. Zeitler's attorneys, Strauss & Hall, "Finally, please remember that given the present state of the building and the history of arson associated with this structure, the Borough is concerned that Mr. Zeitler's procrastination could possibly result in the loss of life in case of a fire ... If Mr. Zeitler's cooperation in bringing this building into compliance with applicable fire code standards is not immediately forthcoming, the Borough will seek a court order requiring him to vacate the structure."

No such court order appears to have been sought.

Mr. Zeitler rents six rooms in the building, at rents ranging from $300-$375, and an apartment, at $800. The total rent roll is $2,835 per month for residential rentals.

Mr. Zeitler is also the owner of 240 John Street, an illegal rooming house that the Borough closed down after numerous health violations were discovered.

—Myrna K. Bearse

203-205 NASSAU STREET was expected to be a major topic of discussion at the Tuesday, August 14, meeting of Borough Council. Representatives of the Rent Registration Board were expected to ask the governing body to immediately remedy life-threatening conditions due to long-standing fire safety hazards.

Office Vacancy Rate Holding Steady Here

The Princeton market's office vacancy rate remained relatively steady at 16.7% during the second quarter of 1990, reported the Cushman & Wakefield office space survey, Across The Nation. The second quarter 1990 office vacancy rate of 16.7% represents a relatively insignificant increase from the first quarter 1990 figure of 16.5%.

"This minimal increase in the Princeton market's vacancy rate is evidence that the market has stabilized, and is not indicative of any weakness in the market," said Donald P. Eisen, senior vice president and branch manager of Cushman & Wakefield's Princeton office. "Princeton is one of the most highly competitive office markets in New Jersey. The demand for space has brought the vacancy rate to one of the lowest for a major suburban business hub in the markets which Cushman & Wakefield monitors."

The increase in the vacancy rate has had relatively no effect on asking rental ranges for new space, which receded slightly from $19.50 to $22.50 in the first quarter of 1990 to the current range of $19.50 to $21.50. The asking rental range for existing construction in the second quarter of 1990 remained the same, at $17.50 to $28.00.

"Overall, the Princeton office market should continue it's steady absorption of existing office space through the second half of 1990," said Mr. Eisen. "This, coupled with the lack of any new construction scheduled to come on line, should reflect a generally steady tightening in this office market."

Summer Cinema Screens Two Films from Britain

Summer Cinema '90 continues on Wednesday with A Room With a View at 7:30, and High Hopes at 9:30. Summer Cinema films are shown in the air-conditioned Kresge Auditorium in the Frick Chemical Building on Washington Road.

A Room With a View was the art film of 1986, and the 16th collaboration of producer Ismail Merchant, director James Ivory, and screenwriter Ruth Prawer Jhabvala. Written in 1901, E.M. Forster's sweetest and sunniest novel is the story of Lucy Honeychurch (Helena Bonham Carter), an uninformed and largely stifled upper middle-class girl who travels to Italy in 1907, falls in love, and is eventually liberated from the mores and conventions of Victorian England. Lucy's destiny is worked out in a mixture of farce, sharp social comedy and romantic adventure, and even a hint of myth.

The gallery of characters includes Maggie Smith as Lucy's spinsterish chaperone; Julian Sands as George, a dream companion of hot blood and enlightened feminism; Judi Dench as a gimlet-eyed novelist, and Daniel Day Lewis as Cecil, her insufferably snobbish suitor whose heart is as starched as his collar.

High Hopes is the work of director Mike Leigh, who has a reputation in England for deadpan-realist, Pinteresque comedies about working-class life in the stagnant state of Thatcherite Britain. In this film he balances his old satire about class rigidity with a new openness and generosity of spirit. High Hopes centers on three shaky survivors in the wreckage of the welfare state: Cyril, a scruffy, disgruntled radical who has stopped waiting for the revolution; Shirl, his bighearted hucktoothed mate, trying unsuccessfully to coax him into fatherhood; and Mrs. Bender, Cyril's increasingly senile mother.

Against them are the arrayed apostles of the "new" England: Cyril's vulgar social-climbing sister and brother-in-law, and a snooty pair of yuppies who have plunked next door to Mrs. Bender's welfare flat. The confrontations between these contrary factions provide ripe opportunities for embarrassment, rancor and unexpected tenderness, culminating in a mortifying birthday party for the unappreciative old woman.

Summer Cinema '90 continues Friday through Sunday with Women on the Verge of a Nervous Breakdown and Crimes & Misdemeanors. Women on the Verge is scheduled to run on Friday and Saturday at 7:30, with Crimes & Misdemeanors at 9:10. On Sunday, Crimes & Misdemeanors shows at 7:30 and Women on the Verge at 9:20.

Women on the Verge of a Nervous Breakdown won the Best Foreign Language Oscar for the Spanish writer-director Pedro Almodovar, who has revitalized the European art cinema with his original brand of post-punk dadaism. This is his most entertaining film to date, a post-modern Pop-boiler that spins dizzily between flipped-out soap opera, borderline science fiction, ultra-synthetic 50's kitsch, old-fashinned sex farce, and up-to-date sexual politics. The plot centers on Pepa (Carmen Maura), a dubbing-studio actress who receives an answering machine kiss-off from her unworthy lover Ivan and sets forth across Madrid to track him down.

Among the obstacles and distractions she encounters along the way are a potful of drugged gaspacho, treacherous taxi rides and airport shootouts, not to mention the oddest collection of characters since the Marx Brothers phoned room service.

Crimes & Misdemeanors is Woody Allen's concluding postscript to the 1980's, a meditation on the psychological economy of the Reagan decade. The movie's comic aspects center on Cliff Stern (Allen), a documentary filmmaker who undertakes to make a film about his brother-in-law (Alan Alda), a big-shot TV producer whom he despises. On the tragic side, the pivotal figure is Judah Rosenthal (Martin Landau), a successful ophthalmologist, who panics when his unstable mistress (Anjelica Huston) threatens to destroy his life if he doesn't divorce his wife (Claire Bloom). For advice, he turns to his gangster brother (Jerry Orbach) who proposes that the mistress be "eliminated" — for a price. In Crimes & Misdemeanors, the characters are faced with terrible choices or they fall into ludicrous and humiliating misadventures.

Casting Call Announced For Two Male Leads

The Franklin Villagers Barn Theatre will hold open auditions for Lee Blessing's comedy A Walk in the Woods on Sunday at 1 and Monday at 7:30. Performances will run October 5 through 29 on Fridays and Saturdays at 8:30, Sundays, October 7 and 21 at 7:30 and Sundays, October 14 and 28, at 2:30.

A Walk in the Woods is a comedy about arms negotiations. John Honeyman, the new American arms negotiator in his mid-40s, comes to Geneva to meet the unusual and enigmatic Andrey Botvinnik, a career Soviet diplomat in his late 50s. The amusing but cynical Botvinnik enlightens the idealistic Honeyman on their true role in the scope of world affairs.

Director Mary Lehne is seeking two men to fill these roles. Those auditioning will be asked to do a cold reading from the script. Resume and photo are requested if available. A copy of the script will be on reserve at the Franklin Township Library adjacent to the theatre. Auditions will be held in the theatre which is located in the Franklin Township Municipal Complex at 475 DeMott Lane (between Easton Avenue and Amwell Road) in the Somerset section of Franklin Township.

Creative Theatre Play At National Conference

At the invitation of The American Alliance for Theatre and Education, Creative Theatre performed with other children's theatre groups in Minneapolis, Minn. recently.

The play performed was The Bremen Town Musicians, an audience-participation play with music adapted from the Grimm tale by the same name. Suggested for families and children ages 4 to 8, it is the story of four animals, a dog, a donkey, a cat and a rooster, who must make new lives for themselves after being kicked out by their masters. They must become a quartet though they all have very different voices.

The four must outwit dangerous robbers and recover stolen money, and they need the assistance of the audience to discover that they are not useless. The production has been adapted by Jean Prall, Creative Theatre education director, and Eloise Bruce, artistic director.

The play features company members Cristi Catt, D. Kenneth Harper, Jeannette Ponder and Jonathan Richter. The music and lyrics are by Rita Asch and the production was designed by Spiritree.

Creative Theatre was founded in 1969 by Sharon Bown, Jacqueline Johnson and Arthur Lithgow, who was then artistic director of McCarter Theatre, as a joint project between McCarter and the Unitarian Church. CT has grown into an autonomous, professional not-for-profit children's theater company, housed in the Arts Council building. The company annually tours six productions into regional schools, provides classes and workshops in creative dramatics as well as artist in education residencies for children and adults who work with children.

The production will be performed as part of Creative Theatre's 1990/91 season and is available to travel to schools, libraries, recreation centers and youth organizations. Other plays available are The Legend of Sleepy Hollow, Where Snow Falls Up, Teaneck to Tuckahoe and Timbuctoo, Glad Rags, and Nightingale. For further information, call Ms. Bruce or Ken Harper at Creative Theatre 924-3489.

Community Orchestra Plans Fourth Season

The Westminster Community Orchestra, Barbara Barstow, conductor, will present four concerts during the 1990-91 season.

Comprised of adult amateur musicians from the Princeton area, the Orchestra is affiliated with Westminster Conservatory of Music, the community music school of Westminster Choir College. Performing for the past four years, the group rehearses Wednesday evenings from 7:30 to 10 p.m. at the Choir College.

Informal auditions for the new season will be held Wednesday and Friday, August 29 and 31, from 6 to 8 p.m. at the Westminster Conservatory and also on Wednesday, September 5. Musicians interested in auditioning should call the Conservatory office, 921-7104, extension 260.

The Orchestra's first concert will be held Sunday, November 18 at 4 in The Playhouse on the Choir College campus. The program will include Poulenc's Concerto in D minor for Two Pianos, Rossini's William Tell Overture, and Khachaturian's Gollop. The Orchestra will be joined by the Conservatory's Suzuki Strings for part of the performance.

Wednesday, December 19 the Orchestra will present a holiday concert featuring traditional holiday favorites.

Saturday, February 9, 1991, the Orchestra will perform at 8 p.m. at Princeton Unitarian Church. Ena Bronstein Barton will be soloist in a performance of Tschaikovsky's Piano Concerto No. 1. The program will also include Mozart's Overture from the Abduction from the Seraglio and Vaughan Williams' Scherzo olla Marcia guest-conducted by Jon Becker.

Saturday, May 4, 1991, the Orchestra will present its spring concert at 8 at the Unitarian Church. The program will include Rimsky-Korsakov's Scheherozade, Villa-Lobos' Bochianas Brasileras, and Mendelssohn's Fingel's Cave Overture.

In addition to regular rehearsals and performances, the Westminster Community Orchestra also holds reading sessions. Two are scheduled for the coming year.

Kindermusik Classes Held at Four Locations

Westminster Conservatory of Music will offer classes in Kindermusik, a program designed to introduce young children to music, in four locations this fall.

Beginning September 10, classes will be offered at the Conservatory's headquarters at Westminster Choir College as well as at Our Lady of Sorrows School in Mercerville and St. Ann's School in Lawrenceville. Kindermusik classes will also be held at Preschool Place at Temple Sholom in Bridgewater.

The Kindermusik program is divided into two curricula — Kindermusik Beginnings and Kindermusik for the Young Child. Kindermusik Beginnings is a series of classes for children between the ages of 18 months and 3½ years. Thirty-minute core lessons involve the parent with the child in nurturing musical experiences. Classes include singing, chanting, listening, and moving.

Kindermusik for the Young Child is an introduction to music for children 4 to 7 years old. Over the course of four 15-week semesters, the children explore their world through music. The program is based on the theory that most children are ready, able and eager to make vocal sounds, to move, to listen, to play simple instruments, and to be creative in all of these areas and more. After successfully completing the Kindermusik program, children should be ready to move on to study individual instruments.

Kindermusik classes are being offered at several times and days at each location. Because class size is limited and interest in these programs is high, early registration is suggested.

Westminster Conservatory of Music is the community music school of Westminster Choir College. It offers music instruction for all ages and on most instruments. For a complete schedule of all classes, including Kindermusik, call the Westminster Conservatory of Music at 921-7104, extension 260.

Scottish Pipe Band In Free Concert in Park

The First Highland Watch Pipe Band will give a free concert Sunday at 2 in Washington Crossing Park, Pa. The concert, which is sponsored by the Washington Crossing Foundation, will take place in the area of the Memorial building just north of Pennsylvania Routes 32 and 532.

The Highland Watch was founded in 1967 in Doylestown, Bucks County, by a group of men of Scottish descent and has grown to include men and women of many ethnic heritages, united by their love of pipe music.

Visitors are invited to bring blankets and chairs to sit along the riverbank and enjoy the ceremonial pageantry of the First Highland Watch as it parades in full Scottish dress to the area of the concert.

Tours are available through the historic village of Taylorsville, the Thompson-Neely House and Grist Mill. Taylorsville walking tours are scheduled at 12:30, 2 and 3:30.

Washington Crossing Historic Park is administered by the Washington Crossing Park Commission and the Pennsylvania Historical and Museum Commission.

Philadelphia Saxophonists To Perform at Rider

The Lawrence Township summer concert series will conclude on Tuesday, August 28, with a performance by the Philadelphia Saxophone Quartet on the Rider College Student Center patio at 7 p.m. The community is invited to bring lawn chairs and blankets to this free concert, which will move indoors to the Rider College Student Center Theater in case of rain.

The Philadelphia Saxophone Quartet performs everything from classical to jazz to pop. Members of the quartet include John Bachalis, tenor saxophone; Bill Holcombe, alto saxophone; Harold Karabel, soprano saxophone; and Jerry Nowak, baritone saxophone.

Mr. Bachalis holds a B.A. degree in music education from Trenton State College and a master of music in applied music from West Virginia University. He has studied saxophone and clarinet privately at the Eastman School. Mr. Bachalis teaches music in the Philadelphia and Pemberton Township Public School Districts and at The Lawrenceville School.

Although Mr. Holcombe is primarily known as an arranger and composer of music for band and orchestra, he has also pursued a parallel career as a professional woodwind doubler. His training includes majoring in flute at the Juilliard School, composition at the University of Pennsylvania, and private study. He has performed with, and arranged for, Tommy Dorsey, Fred Waring and the Pennsylvanians, WMGM, the 101 Strings and Peter Nero's Philly Pops.

Mr. Karabel is known among Philadelphia area professional musicians as a clarinetist and saxophonist. He has been a featured soloist with many classical and jazz ensembles, including the Philadelphia Orchestra, Louis Prima, Bobby Sherwood and Artie Shaw. Formerly music director of Philadelphia's Schubert Theater, he continues to play for stage musicals and televised shows, as well as appear with his own group, the Metropole Jazz Band. A senior associate professor of music at Bucks County Community College in Newtown, Pa., Mr. Nowak is a composer and arranger with more than 700 published works for instrumental and vocal ensembles, and works as a woodwind doubler in the New York and Philadelphia areas.

Dixieland Band at Park

The Joe Scannella Dixieland Band will present a free concert Saturday at 7 in Mercer County Park, West Windsor.

The performance is part of the "Music in the Park" series presented by the Mercer County Cultural and Heritage Commission in July and August.

This year's concert by the Joe Scannella Dixieland Jazz Band will feature Mr. Scannella's son, Rich Scannella, on drums. A third-generation musician, he has toured the country with such leading artists as rock performer Gary US Bonds. He continues to perform with his father at various society affairs and jazz concerts.

Parking, Traffic Master Plan Is Needed for the Borough

To the Editor of Town Topics:

If, dear reader, you oppose the proposed use of the Palmer House property as a municipal parking lot in Princeton's western section ...

Or if, dear reader, you opposed certain features of the Borough's new E/3-E/4 zoning ordinance because they permit Princeton University to build multi-level automobile garages adjacent to residential areas in the town's northeastern section ...

Then you might recognize a vital self-interest in urging Mayor and Council and the Regional Planning Board to develop a Borough traffic and parking master plan.

Borough officials have already approved the new zoning ordinance and are considering approval of the Palmer House proposal because, to paraphrase some of those involved, "The development is for the good of the community as a whole."

Unfortunately, there is little empirical data available and not much analytical discussion in municipal government concerning the Borough's long-term traffic and parking requirements. For example, the 1990 Princeton Community Master Plan is virtually silent on the subject.

In the absence of a thoughtful planning process, municipal officials too frequently settle traffic and parking controversies on a highly personalized and ad hoc basis, according to undefined criteria, and without articulating the basis of decision except by such empty phrases as, "It's for the good of the community as a whole."

Consequently, the public has little confidence in the decision-making process and naturally gravitates to suspecting "back room deals."

Municipal officials should consider, decide, and defend their actions in support of particular land use proposals based upon sound planning principles. If a Borough traffic and parking master plan were developed and included such principles, municipal decision-makers could be held accountable by the requirement of such a plan.

The Palmer House and E/3-E/4 zoning controversies teach the same lesson: the Borough needs a traffic and parking master plan.

Mulch Mania Is Hurting Trees Around Princeton

To the Editor of Town Topics:

There seems to be an epidemic in Princeton. It can best be described as "mulch mania." Someone must have told somebody that mounding a heavy circle of mulch around an existing, or newly planted tree, was a compassionate gesture toward prolonging the life of the tree. Sadly it is quite the opposite. It is a gesture that will eventually kill the tree.

The primary purpose of mulching is to retain moisture in the soil. The secondary purpose is to discourage weeds, and give a neat appearance while also lowering the amount of maintenance around a tree. But, never should mulch or pebbles or soil be placed in such a way that they raise the ground level directly around where the tree trunk emerges from the ground. This unnatural interference smothers the cells in the trunk and will kill the tree.

I have noticed this heavy application of mulch on many new and old trees around town. One sad example is the row of large trees on the left side of Monument Drive leading up to Borough Hall. This over-mulching was called to the attention of Borough officials over a month ago, but the situation has not been corrected.

The solution is simple, and a great deal less costly than having to remove a dead tree. The mulch should be removed directly around the trunk, making a well about a foot out from the trunk, at the original level that the tree emerged from the soil. This well also collects and retains water that will help to nourish the tree. The rest of the mulch can remain to serve its purpose. Also it is not necessary to put mulch down in a depth exceeding four inches. Too deep an application defeats its purpose and can actually prevent water from entering the soil.

There are enough blights, insects, diseases, pollutants that are harming trees without misguided humans mulching the trees to death.

Terhune Rd. Deer Hunt Is Preposterous Idea

To the Editor of Town Topics:

Following is a copy of a letter we have written to Township Mayor Kate Litvack.

We were startled to read in the August 8 issue of TOWN TOPICS that you expressed an interest in the idea of allowing bow hunting of deer on the undeveloped land between the Princeton Shopping Center and Terhune Road.

Our home is directly adjacent to that land, and of course if hunting were to be permitted there we could not use our back yard, and just walking (running, more likely) between our car and our house would be risky. Indeed, persons walking along Terhune or Harrison would also be taking their lives in their hands.

The very notion of allowing hunting in the middle of a busy residential area is so preposterous that we find it difficult to imagine how anyone could show it the least bit of interest. Surely you, and those who proposed this idea, will reconsider it when it is weighed against the safety of the community.

An opening reception will take place Monday, October 1, from 4 to 7 p.m. in the gallery. The reception will be held in conjunction with the inauguration of Rider's fifth president, J. Barton Luedeke, and on the official anniversary of the college's founding 125 years ago.

Mr. Godfrey, whose paintings are mostly oil-on-linen, is an artist, writer and teacher. He is head of the art department at Western Carolina University in Cullowhee, N.C.

This year, selected solo exhibitions have included showings at the Fayetteville Museum of Art and the Greenville Museum of Art, both in North Carolina. His other solo exhibits include Waterworks Visual Arts Center, N.C., 1988; Asheville Art Museum, N.C., 1986; Blue Mountain Gallery, New York City, 1983; Butler Institute of American Art, Ohio, 1983; and Butcher & More Galleries, Inc., Philadelphia, 1982.

The Gallery at Bristol-Myers Squibb will exhibit the work of 16 high school students who have completed a three-week art program at Mercer County Community College. For the third consecutive summer, the company has sponsored courses in figure drawing, taught by Mel Leipzig, and computer art, taught by Margaret Livingston, for students from New Jersey and eastern Pennsylvania.

The exhibition will be on view from August 30 through September 16. The public is invited to an opening reception on Thursday, August 30, from 5 to 7 p.m.

The Gallery is located in the Bristol-Myers Squibb Pharmaceutical Group Headquarters on Route 206, three miles south of Princeton.

Oil paintings by Charles Parness will be at the Chauncey Gallery of Educational Testing Service from August 16 to September 21.

Mr. Parness is an artist in love with the bizarre and makebelieve who is known for his wildly imaginative oil paintings.

Gallery hours are Monday through Saturdays from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m.

Works by Liz Adams will be on exhibit at Princeton Meadows Country Club restaurant, Plainsboro, through October 16.

A mixed-media artist, she will show handmade paper, drawings, watercolors, computer-generated art, and monotypes. Her work is in numerous private collections and in the collection of Mercer County College.

Yale Is Consensus Pick For Ivy Football Crown

The end of the Ivy League race last November produced a tie for the football title between Princeton and Yale, but there's no deadlock on the thinking as to who should finish first this fall.

The Elis have been installed as the favorites in a poll conducted by the league itself, and various football magazines surveyed recently. It comes as no surprise.

By at least one measuring stick, the surprise will come if Yale does repeat as champion. It's been five years since the league's pre-season favorite has lived up to predictions. In 1986, Penn was the choice, and it blew through its schedule without losing a game.

Since then, however, the previous year's champion has crumbled the following year. The Quakers were the pick a year ago, and went nowhere. After a superb '87 campaign, Harvard was everybody's first choice in '88, and finished near the bottom.

Why They Love Yale

Certainly, there are plenty of reasons for prognosticators to favor Yale this fall. The Bulldogs return five of their 14 all-league players, including all-Ivy quarterback Darin Kehler and the rest of the offensive backfield. The offensive line has three veterans. Defense lost plenty, but sophomores from an undefeated freshman team may be able to fill some holes.

Moreover, the Elis have established a strong winning tradition in the sport, since the league began formal round-robin play in 1956. Yale has won or tied for the title 12 times. Only Dartmouth (13) has done it more.

Finally, nobody ever underestimates what the dean of Ivy football coaches, Carm Cozza, can produce given the talent. Yale went through some lean times in the 1980s, but its title last year may signal a return to the top.

Certainly, the 16 writers and broadcasters from the eight Ivy towns and cities were impressed by Yale's strengths. Ten of them picked the Elis first on their ballot, enabling Cozza's team to pile up 116 points, 19 points ahead of the next team.

That would be the Tigers, who garnered three first-place votes, but finished well back with 97 points. The Orange and Black, which won its first title in 20 years, doesn't command the kind of respect Yale does at this point. Plus, the Bulldogs won the showdown between the two in Palmer Stadium last November.

Princeton is comfortably ahead of the third-place team, Cornell, which received 83 points, but no first-place votes. Right behind the Big Red were Dartmouth, 79, Harvard 75, and Penn, 70. All got one first-place vote.

Look Out for the Lions

As usual, Brown and Columbia get little respect. It's a free-fall to the Bruins in seventh place with just 35 points, and Columbia is in the cellar with 19. However, this may be the year for the Lions to prove themselves. They look forward to the return of two talented players, Greg Abbruzzese and Solomon Johnson, who sat out last year with injuries after strong sophomore seasons. The Light Blue, which will face a rebuilding Harvard team with a brand new quarterback in New York the first game of the season, could well ambush the Crimson.

Five of the six football magazines surveyed agree with the Ivy poll, putting Yale on top. Princeton is ranked first by one publication, Game Plan's College Football 1990 Preview.

The Tigers are dropped to as low as fourth by another publication, with teams like Dartmouth and Harvard moving up in the rankings to second place behind Yale in two predictions.

As interesting as it may seem now, the guessing will all be forgotten just a month from now when the Ivy season opens on Saturday, September 15.

Next week: the first article previewing Princeton's 1990 football team.

—Jeb Stuart

Good and Bad for Garrett

There were pluses and minuses for Princeton's Judd Garrett in his first exhibition game for the Philadelphia Eagles against the New York Jets last Saturday night.

The former Tiger running back got off to a shaky start in the third quarter when he fumbled the bandoff from quarterback Matt Cavanaugh on his first carry. Later, he was held to no gain in his only other running play of the game.

Garrett was more successful as a pass receiver, catching a 13-yard pass from Cavanaugh in the third period. He might have picked up more yardage, but the pass was low and he stumbled and fell after making the reception.

His big play of the night came in the fourth period when he turned in a nice piece of open field running, returning a Pat Leahy kickoff 49 yards to the Jets 43. All in all, in a 17-6 loss to New York, Buddy Ryan's team didn't show a whole lot of offense on the ground, gaining just 51 yards in 20 attempts. Three Philadelphia quarterbacks completed just nine of 26 passes with one interception.

Hockey Schedule Set For 1990-91 Campaign

Unlike the constantly changing Princeton basketball schedule which is influenced by a wide range of forces, the Tiger hockey team and its fans can count on the scheduling status quo from one winter to the next.

Since the 12-team ECAC Division I was formed in the early '80s, the 26 games and the order in which they are played are little changed. The same opponents are met on the same weekends throughout the winter, with only the home and away dates alternating each season.

With a home and away game scheduled against the other 11 ECAC foes accounting for 22 contests, just four non-league contests can be added. This set-up assures the Tigers of getting 12 to 14 playing dates in Baker Rink.

So, it comes as no surprise that Jim Higgins' skaters will open the season the second weekend in November against Colgate and Cornell in Hamilton and Ithaca. A year ago the two played here the same weekend. The regular season will close the final weekend in February when the Tigers play Yale and Brown in Baker.

In between, they'll face Harvard and Dartmouth, St. Lawrence and Clarkson, and Vermont and RPI, twice. Traveling partner Army is set for Tuesday night contests in late November and mid-January. Out of the league, Princeton will face Hockey East opponent, Boston University, November 24 at home; Colorado College twice on December 14 and 15 in Colorado Springs; and Notre Dame here on December 29.

Unlike basketball, there will be plenty of chances to watch the skaters this winter, but the hopes and dreams for this team are considerably more hedged that those of Pete Carril's squad, which is expected to mount a successful defense of its Ivy title, and again move on to the NCAA Tournament.

First, there is the perennial warning that Princeton must compete on unequal footing against the likes of St. Lawrence, Clarkson, RPI, Vermont and Colgate — and Harvard, too, is obviously in a different class.

One of the most amazing golfers of all time was a little-known man named John Montague who, during the 1930s, developed some of the most fantastic feats ever seen on a golf course ... He was able to hit moving targets with a golf shot — and one time he shot an 80 over 18 holes using a shovel, rake and baseball bat instead of conventional golf clubs! ... Playing seriously, he once shot a 58 at a Palm Springs club, bettering the course record by 7 strokes ... He was probably the greatest shot control artist in the history of the game, but is hardly remembered today.

Good, Bad and Ugly

Last year, typical of Tiger hockey, produced some of the most exhilarating moments and some of the most frustrating. The weekend sweep against St. Lawrence and Clarkson on the road was the high point of the winter, followed by the opening win over Cornell, and another triumph over Clarkson in Baker Rink.

There were low points, too, like the 4-2 loss to Brown at home, after beating Yale with an almost perfect game the night before. The third period collapse that produced a 9-7 loss to Vermont in Burlington was another downer. And the 5-1 playoff loss at home to the Elis put a dismal cap on the season.

Still, the overall record of 12-14-1, and the 11-10-1 league mark, good for a seventh place finish — the best ever — can not be overlooked. Given the players lost to graduation, the thinking here is Old Nassau will be hard pressed to match that.

Gone are four of the six top forwards on the team, including the high-scoring Greg Polaski, Mark Khozozian, Kevin Sullivan and Bart Blaeser. The team's top scorer, Andre Faust, is back for his third year, and he'll get considerable help from senior tri-captain Sean Murphy, who finished as the fourth leading scorer.

Counting on Sophomores

However, the offensive capability will depend on how fast sophomores Keith Merkler, Tery Morris, Brian Bigelow and Scott Sinson take up the slack. The defense — led by seniors Andy Cesarski and Sean Gorman — returns almost intact. Juniors Mike McKee, an offensive threat, and Jeff Kampersal, also return, as does sophomore Sverce Sears. He saw plenty of playing time as a freshman.

Seniors Ron High and Mark Salisbury reach their final year, and one can only hope that one of them will finally have the kind of banner season that will lift the entire team, much like Chris Harvey did for Brown. Both have played well in spurts, but neither has been able to sustain that for 26 games.

There is talk that freshman Eric Robertsen, recruited from Andover, might be able to step in, but that remains to be seen. The early word is that none of the freshmen headed here this fall are impact players.

If there is good news, it's that the Tigers have only to finish in 10th place to secure another spot in the playoffs. Just two teams are eliminated after the regular season is over, and the Tigers seem to have enough going for them to avoid that embarrassment.

The Complete Schedule

November 9 at Colgate; 10, at Cornell; 16, Harvard; 17, Dartmouth; 24, Boston University; 27, at Army; and 30, at RPI.

December 1 at Vermont, 7, Clarkson; 8, St. Lawrence; 14 and 15, at Colorado College; and 29, Notre Dame.

January 4 at Yale; 5, at Brown; 11, Cornell; 12, Colgate; and 15, Army.

February 1 at Dartmouth; 2, at Harvard; 8, Vermont; 9, RPI; 15, at St. Lawrence; 16, at Clarkson; 22, Yale; and 23, Brown.

Hinkson's Out of Playoffs; New League, Next Year

Hinkson's Stationery ended its tenure in the Mercer National Softball League on a down note last week, losing a pair of playoff games to Lapidus Market.

It was something of a comedown for a team that finished the regular season 25-1, the best record ever in the league. Nevertheless, Hinkson's is looking ahead, rather than back, to next year when it will join the tougher American League in the County.

Manager John Roberto downplayed the losses in the playoffs, commenting that winning the league is much more important. "The season-long thing means more, because you play all those games," Roberto said. "Anybody can get hot in the playoffs."

Roberto also pointed out that Hinkson's was missing four of its starters: Kelvin Murray, Jimmy Whalen and Bob and Mario Mangone.

Season Ends Abruptly For Ficarro's Auto Body

Winning a doubleheader over Dot's Girls the week before, Steve Ficarro's Auto Body seemed to be in a good position to make a run for the championship of the Women's Softball League when the playoffs began last week.

Instead, the Princeton-based team was quickly bounced out of the proceedings, losing two consecutive games with hardly a whimper. Perhaps the team missed its veteran manager, Bob Smyth, who had taken off for two weeks on a well-earned vacation.

Ficarro's was also missing a couple of players when it faced Three Seasons a week ago Tuesday in the playoff for second place. Both teams had finished the regular season with 22-5 records.

The rest of the Ficarro players must have forgotten their hats, managing just six harmless hits in a 1-0 loss. Cee Aerstin had two of them in a two-for-two performance.

Louann Slocum-Robidoux pitched well in defeat, allowing Three Seasons just five hits. The winners pushed across an unearned run in the sixth for the game's only tally.

That loss sent Ficaro's to another Mercer County field to play sixth place Larkin's Gulf. The girls hit a little better, but the result was another loss, this time 6-4.

Ficarro's carried a 3-1 lead into the sixth inning, but couldn't hold it. Larkin's bounced back with four runs of its

Four Sports Leagues Planned by YM for Fall

The YMCA will offer four sport leagues including volleyball, basketball, soccer and football this fall. The 12-week session begins September 9. Each league is composed of different levels ranging from very competitive to recreational.

The volleyball league will be held Tuesday and Thursday nights from 7 to 10, at three locations: the YMCA, Stuart Country Day School and The Lawrenceville School. The basketball league is four-on-four (half court) for over 18 or over 30 and five-on-five (full court) for over 18.

Basketball will be held on Thursday nights from 7 to 10 at The Hun School. The football league will be four-on-four flag football on Sundays, 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. at the YMCA. The soccer league will be held on Sunday from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. at a field that has yet to be determined.

For more information or ideas concerning a soccer field call the YMCA at 497-YMCA.

Youth Soccer Registration

The Princeton Soccer Association will hold registration for its recreational leagues on Saturday, September 8 at the Dinky railroad station on University Place from 10 a.m. till noon.

The recreational program, which is for girls and boys in grades kindergarten through eighth, is played on Saturdays from September 15 through November 17 on the Washington Road 'Fete' fields. The fee is $30 for the fall season, but this can be waived in the case of financial hardship. Neither Princeton residency nor previous soccer experience is required for this "just for fun" soccer league.

YOU CAN BUY A SAAB 9000S FOR THE SAME PRICE AS A $25,000 COMPROMISE.

When it comes to buying a new car, what you trade off is as important as what you trade in.

So it's worth noting that one car asks to be judged not by the single standards of performance, utility or safety – but by all of them. The Saab 9000S.

Powered by the largest engine Saab ever built, the 9000S delivers performance worthy of a true sports sedan.

But this sportiness isn't offered in lieu of space. The 9000S is the only European import to meet EPA specifications as a "Large" car. And with its rear seat folded, the 9000S easily shoulders the payload of a quarter-ton truck.

Yet for all its strengths, the 9000S is a car of rare compassion. It features a driver's-side air bag, rigid steel safety cage, anti-lock brakes – and the highest safety rating of any car in its class, Volvo and Mercedes included.*

By any automotive yardstick, the 9000S is the sports sedan others should be measured by. To do so, just come in and ask for a test drive.

How Marion Opdycke Got Her Start at the Balt

In the July, 1984 issue of The Princeton Recollector, Marion Opdycke recounted to editor Elric J. Endershy, how she got her start at the Balt, a famous Nassau Street eatery, located where Hinkson's is now. Swift Tarbell opened it in 1923, using an abbreviated name of the Baltimore Dairy Lunch, a chain of restaurants popular at the time between Baltimore and New York.

"I started there in 1953. I knew a radio man named Sloin. He had a radio shop up on Witherspoon Street. And I had gone in there for something ... And he said, 'Do you want a job?' I wasn't working at the time.

"I had been working at 239 Nassau Street for Professor McCloskey's widow, I was a companion to her, but she had passed away, and I was in to find a job, you see. I said, 'Yeah, what kind of job?'

"And, he said, 'Behind a soda fountain.' I said, 'I never made a coke in my life!' He said, "Well you can learn.' So, I said, 'Who is this guy?' And, he said, 'Right around the corner — Mr. Tarbell.

"And, I told Mr. Tarbell then, I said, 'Mr. Tarbell, I don't know any more about making a coke than I do about mixing Paris green.' He said, 'Well, you can learn.'

And in 1953 you had 'em three deep at the counter ... And, oh, I tell you, this was where my love for the students started, 'cause they're the ones that taught me. I said, 'My name is Marion, I'm new here, now what do you want?'

'I want a cherry coke. You put a shot of cherry and a shot of coke and pull the seltzer.' And they showed me how to do it. And one of 'em said he wanted a black cow, and I said, 'What's a black cow?'

And he said, 'Well, push the syrup thing, and put a shot of milk in it, and put some seltzer in it, and put ice cream in it.' I learned it all from them.

OBITUARIES

Marion Bush Opdycke, a familiar figure at the Balt Restaurant on Nassau Street for 10 years, died August 10 at the Merwick Unit of Princeton Medical Center. She was 84.

Born in Princeton, Mrs. Opdycke was a lifelong resident of the Princeton area. She was employed by the Balt Restaurant from 1953 to 1963 and at the University Cleaners on Moore Street from 1963 until her retirement in 1972.

Working at the front counter of the Balt, she was known for squeezing fresh orange juice and being a surrogate mother to many Princeton University students. She appeared in four PJ&B musicals directed by Milton Lyon, who had her squeezing fresh orange juice in Guys and Dolls and Show Boat.

When the Balt closed after 42 years at 82 Nassau Street, some 500 students held a mock funeral to mark its passing, and she took part. TOWN TOPICS of January 24, 1963, ran a story on the event, and described the song the students wrote for the occasion as also paying tribute to Mrs. Opdycke "who has gained a wide student following in the 10 years in which she's been employed at the restaurant."

The article quoted Mrs. Opdycke as saying, "These boys were part of my life. I've listened to their stories in their sad times, in their good times. You see them come in as fresh little kids and four years later they go out grown up, mature gentle."

Mrs. Opdycke kept in close touch with several students she had known well as undergraduates. She liked to tell about one who became quite wealthy and had a ranch in Texas. He bought her a horse, which he kept for her on the ranch, and every year would send her a plane ticket for a two-week visit to the ranch.

Another young man became a doctor, and when Mrs. Opdycke was hospitalized recently, he surprised her by flying from Chicago to see how she was. She woke up from a nap in her hospital bed to find him sitting by her bedside.

Mrs. Opdycke was a member of the Princeton Baptist Church at Penns Neck.

Wife of the late Lloyd A. Opdycke, she is survived by two sisters, Ruth Mozgo and Edna Bush; and a brother, Russell Bush.
